If you're into racing, then Live For Speed is a must-have. It's a realistic racing simulation that takes the fun out of your average arcade racer. By using powerful physics to drive the physics engine, LFS is able to give gamers a true-to-life experience from the moment they start driving. LFS captures all factors of reality and creates something that is not only challenging but incredibly addicting, too. It's the best racer you'll ever play. First off, LFS looks great. The cars are detailed with everything from authentic brands to working headlights and license plates. The tracks are also amazing, with some that are packed with scenery and others that are barren except for the road in front of you. All of this makes for a very cool experience while you're racing. The sound is also very impressive, too, with recorded engine noises that range from squeaks to growls to bumps on the road. It adds a lot to the racing experience, because it's hard not to get into how everything sounds while you're driving 500 miles per hour on one of the fastest tracks in LFS. On top of all this, you'll be amazed at how LFS handles such things as crashes and items on the road. It's hard to explain how you'll hit a pole and go flying over it, or how you'll spin out and flip countless times before coming to a stop. The physics engine creates a very convincing simulation of just what happens when you're racing fast and your car gets damaged. If you're looking for a good racing game that you can play even if the only computer around is the one in your home television, then LFS is absolutely worth checking out!
